

THREE FEVER CASES IN PENSACOLA

These men are now up and walking about the house, their attacks being mild but positive.

As there is ample time to destroy any steomyia which may have bitten these patients before they become infectible to the human, an earnest effort will be made to accomplish this object, and arrangements are being perfected by which the two squares in which these cases have been found shall be screened and fumigated. A bi-daily medical inspection of all persons living in this territory will be had and any other cases will be cared for in screened rooms. The Louisville & Nashville railroad and water transportation companies have been directed to sell tickets only to persons authorized by the state health authority, and no one living within one hundred (100) feet of the squares where the cases are located will be permitted to go elsewhere in the state, and the same is forbidden as a quarantine measure and restriction on travel.

The restricted territory is hereby under police guard, and is to be considered as within a sanitary cordon.

The citizens of Pensacola are urgently requested to screen their houses, and destroy on the premises and in the home all breeding places for these insects. Use nets at night and fumigate sleeping rooms and lounging rooms daily, that mosquitoes may be killed. Maintain a calm, conservative course, attend to business, and permitting the Health Authorities of city and state to attend to theirs, thus aiding both in their effort to repeat successfully the incident of the West Tampa eradication.

To the physicians of Pensacola the State Health Officer earnestly asks that all fever cases be closely watched and studied, treating every case under a mosquito net, and fumigating with pyrethrum powder every fever room, after it has been sealed, and immediately notifying the State Health Authorities when any doubtful symptom, not well understood, arises in the course of treatment.

With the united efforts of the people, it is hoped this incident may soon be closed.

JOSEPH Y. PORTER,
State Health Officer.

The Quarantine District.

When the fever was discovered the physicians immediately met with Dr. Porter and a consultation was held as to the best course to pursue. It was decided to place around the infected district a cordon and to prevent parties either from entering or departing from that section. This section will be as follows: Alcaniz street on the east; Church street on the south; Jefferson street and Cushman's alley on the west and Romana street on the north. All the residences in this section will be fumigated and none of the occupants will be allowed to leave that area covered by the quarantine.

Cordon Was Placed

Shortly after 12 o'clock a cordon of 12 men was placed around the quarantine district. Marshal Schad and Mayor Bliss were in charge of the men and stationed them at various points to see that no one was allowed to pass in or out of the district. Furthermore those who have left the district will be compelled to return and remain until the quarantine is removed.

Other States Notified.

Dr. Porter, in accordance with his custom, last night sent out telegrams to health officers in Alabama, Texas, Mississippi, Charleston and Savannah notifying them of the existence of yellow fever. These telegrams were sent early in the night or as soon as it was definitely decided that the cases were yellow fever.

Dr. Guiteras Coming.

Dr. Guiteras, the famous yellow fever expert from Cuba, who has been in New Orleans for several weeks, will reach Pensacola this afternoon. His visit to the city was arranged some time since, and it is probable that he will remain for only a few days, when he will proceed to Cuba.

Mayor Bliss Talks.

Mayor Bliss, in speaking of the condition, last night said, after a consultation with other officials:

"Dr. Porter has called on the city for assistance for police officers to carry out the plans for stamping out the disease, and the same has been cheerfully given to them. The city is in the best sanitary condition it has been for many years, though there are some places that still need attention. The City Board of Health is more determined than ever that the unsanitary places remaining shall be attended to at once, notably among which is the property near Wright's mill and also near Herron's wharf."

"The chief fight to be made by Pensacollans is to destroy every mosquito possible, with a view to killing any infected mosquito that might exist in the city at present."

"There will be no effort or means spared to eradicate the disease."

"There is no one sick at the present time with the fever, that we know of, and any danger that might come from an infected person is passed, and the only danger is from mosquitoes. I would advise all to fumigate their homes with sulphur, as it is sure death to a mosquito."

"The public can be assured that everything that occurs will be made known to them, and that nothing whatever will be hidden. There is not the necessity, at the present time for people to get afraid and run away as formerly, and there is no doubt but that we will be able to stamp out the disease here as it has been stamped out in other places, such as in Tampa, Montgomery, Lumberton, and numerous other towns."

A FAMOUS OLD BRIDGE.

It is Curiously Decorated With Historic Pictures.

Few places in Switzerland are more interesting than the historic old city of Lucerne, at the junction of the river Reuss and Lake Lucerne, memorable for its historic associations with the heroic legends of William Tell.

Across the river are two wonderful wooden bridges, the Muehlenbruecke, or "Mill bridge," with its quaint pictures of the "Dance of death," and the Kapellbruecke, or "Chapel bridge." This chapel bridge was constructed as long ago as 1333 and for nearly 600 years formed the chief avenue of traffic across the broad but sluggish stream. Anciently the bridge extended its zig-zag shape to nearly twice its present length and reached as far as the Hofkirche, or cathedral, whence its name.

In the center of this covered wooden bridge stands the famous octagonal Wasserthurm, or water tower, where in olden times the municipal treasure was stored. For ages it was also used as a prison and among the dungeons as a torture chamber.

But the most unique feature of all consists of the curious pictures in the roof of the bridge. These old pictures—sixty-nine of them—are painted on triangular wooden panels which fit into the pitched roof of the bridge. One after another they tell the most salient facts of Swiss history or portray events in the life of the tutelar saints of the town, St. Leodegar and St. Maurice.—New York Tribune.

TAFFY CANDY.

Why It Becomes White Through Pulling and Working.

You have often wondered and have even gone so far perhaps as to ask your scientifically inclined friend why candy or taffy made from brown sugar or even molasses becomes white by pulling and working. The question is not a hard one to find an answer for, provided you look in the right place, but it is too chances to one that you have never seen a solution of the enigma in print.

First, the exposure to the air and the friction evaporate the sirup, which contains most of the coloring matter, and facilitate the oxidation of the carbon in the sugar, which is always white. Sugar contains eleven atoms of oxygen to twelve of carbon and eleven of hydrogen. The sirup drained from this same sugar in the refining process not only contains more or less of coloring matter, but has a smaller proportion of oxygen to the amount of carbon.

Still another reason why taffy is whitened by the pulling process is because it is in effect similar to crushing. Pure, clear rock candy, when crushed, has its powers of absorbing light destroyed or greatly impaired, the pulverized portions reflecting all the elementary colors in each ray, which, of course, results in the eye receiving the impression of white light.

"Consider the porous plaster, my son," remarked the philosopher, "and don't get discouraged. Everybody turns his back on it, yet it hangs on and eventually achieves success by close application."

Unpunctuality is the secret of success—for the punctual.

It is well to learn caution by the misfortune of others.—Publius Syrus.

CHINESE NEATNESS.

The Man Is Clean Even If His Surroundings Are Dirty.

Next time you are in Chinatown notice the finger nails of the inhabitants. You will be surprised possibly to find that they are generally as clean and bright as though they had just come from the manicure.

As are his finger nails so is the rest of the Chinaman's body. It is one of the queer contradictions about this contradictory people that, although their houses are usually surrounded by a fringe of dirt and although they don't take to modern sanitation a bit, they are very cleanly in their personal habits.

The daily bath is an institution. A bathtub is not necessary. Your Chinaman manages very well with a few cupsful of water and a wash rag.

He completes his toilet by polishing his long nails, and every day or so he visits the barber, who shaves not only the scanty hair on his face, but also his head and the inside of his ears. If he can afford it, the Chinaman puts on a clean blouse every day or two. It is, no accident that these people are a nation of laundrymen. It comes to them naturally.—Washington Post.

Vegetable Ivory.

The vegetable ivory of commerce is an albuminous substance formed from a milky fluid in the fruit of a species of palm indigenous to several parts of Central and South America, but which seems to flourish best in New Granada and Peru. It corresponds to the meat of the cocoon, which latter is the fruit of another species of palm. When vegetable ivory nuts are ripe they are covered with a brown skin and are bean shaped, the interior being perfectly white and very hard.

More Than Beauty Needed.

"Am I beautiful enough to be wooed by a duke?"

"Yes, indeed; but not rich enough."—Houston Post.
